Each USG institution shall have an institutional catalog that provides, at a minimum, the following information:

- General information about the institution, e.g., mission, accreditation, degrees and certificates offered
- Admissions and enrollment
- Registration and reentry
- Academic resources
- Policies and disclosures
- Programs of study and required courses
- Student services
- Course descriptions
- Administration and faculty
- Graduation requirements

The catalog informs students of expectations. The institution has the right to change the catalog without notice to individual students. It is the student's responsibility to keep apprised of current graduation requirements for a particular degree program.
